Company: Charles River Associates

Location: Brussels

Category: other-general

Job Overview

Senior Associates work closely with senior consultants on project teams, and will have the opportunity to immediately work on some of the largest, high profile and most significant competition cases in Europe, playing a key role in shaping the economic analysis and thinking of these cases. Successful candidates have a strong knowledge of economic concepts and a range of research and quantitative skills. A typical Senior Associate would:

Identify and conceptualise issues, specifying rigorous economic models to analyse market issues and data, undertaking statistical and econometric estimation, and managing the work of research associate staff and colleagues;

Supervise, train and mentor research associate staff;

Assist in the development and presentation of client deliverables, including expert reports and white papers summarising opinions, conclusions, and recommendations using market, industry or client-proprietary data;

Act as a primary point of contact for lawyers and other industry or government clients on a variety of practice-relevant issues;

Program, build models and/or perform regression analyses in statistical analysis programs (such as Stata, Python, R, SAS, Matlab, and Mathematica), including large data projects requiring use of cloud computing;

Ensure the integrity and accuracy of analyses and opinions; and

Contribute to practice-building activities (training, recruiting, publication, expertise sharing, etc.).

Job Qualifications

PhD degree in economics with a completion date of December 2023/Summer 2024 and an academic focus on Applied Microeconomics or Applied Microeconometrics, with specializations like industrial organization, labor, health, behavioural and public economics, or other quantitative areas;

Experience in Excel, Stata, Python, R, SQL, SAS, ArcGIS/ArcPy, or Cloud computing (Databricks/Spark, Google Cloud, Azure, AWS);

Demonstrated understanding of, and ability to explain, economic, financial and/or accounting concepts, and quantitative and qualitative analysis methods;

Curious and analytical thinkers who bring creative approaches to non-standard problems;

Effective written and oral communication skills;

Eagerness to learn new skills and programming languages;

Demonstrated high level of initiative and leadership;

Strong teamwork and collaboration capabilities;

Excellent time management and task prioritization skills; and

Clear and demonstrated interest in consulting through coursework, work experience, activities, or attendance at CRA recruiting events.

As much of our work occurs in our offices, minimal travel is required.
